Chapter 2:

The Fresh Start: Noah

Noah did not really understand why the flood came and why others had to perish; but he was intimately aware of his role in God's fresh start. His seed had been blessed and his children with their children, would repopulate the earth and ensure God's promised seed would provide the redeeming Messiah to the entire world.

The Nephilim were to be taken care of as the result of the great flood – along with all other humans on the Earth, except for Noah and his extended family. With regard to the Watchers – the solution was not so easy; remember fallen angels are immortal and also being 'supernatural' -- you cannot kill them or for that matter, you cannot even injure them.

The Lord had to call in the archangels to deal with the Watchers. For example, he directed Raphael to secure Azazyel. "Again the Lord said to Raphael, Bind Azazyel hand and foot; cast him into darkness; and opening the desert which is in Dudael, cast him there. Throw upon him hurled and pointed stones, covering him with darkness; There shall he remain for ever; cover his face, that he may not see the light. And in the great day of judgement let him be cast into the fire." It was not easy taking care of each of the 200 Watchers – but with the assistance of the Archangels, it was accomplished. The only unanswered question was: 'How long will the Watchers be restrained under the desert rocks at Dudael?' and 'What will be the consequences of escaping their underground constraints?'

The flood ended and life began again upon the earth. There were no Nephilim, nor were there any Watchers – God's perfect creation had been restored and the precious seed of life was once again on-track to produce the promised Messiah. The children of Israel grew and inhabited the land near Jerusalem, on a plateau in the Judaean Mountains, between Mediterranean Sea and the Dead Sea. Joseph, being one of Israel's sons that was sold into slavery in Egypt and rose to become second in-command under the Egyptian Pharo. He was put in charge of storing and distributing grain for use during famines; so when famine came to the land of Canaan, many migrated into the land of Egypt to ensure they would have food for their families. The children of Israel soon became indebted and were forced into 400 years of slavery – that is, until Moses demanded that his people be set free.

During the next forty years, Moses would receive stone tablets containing the Law from God, on top of Mount Sinai. Also during that time, Moses would write the Book of Genesis – telling of the beginning of time. As they were getting closer to the Promised Land of Canaan, the 40-year ordeal in the Sanai Peninsula took a toll on the returning Israelites and was fatal for Moses. Moses never reached the Promised Land, but instead reached the end of his life just west of the Jordan River. It is there, within sight of Canaan, that Joshua was commissioned to become their new leader.

Joshua received instructions from the Lord and was commanded to destroy all decendents of the Nephilim that occupied Canaan – all the men, the women, the children, and the animals. Nothing was to remain alive. Plus, the Israelites were to not to take any material goods that belonged to those descendants of the Nephilim. One must inquire about the existence of Nephilim DNA – how was that possible? They were not supposed to exist! After God's great deluge and the ethnic cleansing, the question as to the source of the Nephilim DNA is a hard question to answer.

Perhaps recessive genes belonging to the Nephilim giants DNA were present in Noah's extended family and eventually became a dominant trait throughout the population. No one knows for sure, but the inhabitants (like the tribe of Goliath), were large individuals and the Israeli spies felt like 'grasshopper' when they stood next to them. These giant-like warriors retained many of the traits associated with the ancient Nephilim – sons of the Watchers.

The armies of Israel attacked the tribes inhabiting the land of Canaan, starting with the town of Jerico — and those walls 'came tumbling down'. They triumphed in each battle, tribe after tribe; until there was enough conquered land to divide-up among the twelve tribes of Israel. They tried very hard to keep God's commandments and almost succeeded; except for rescuing Canaanite women, Rachel, from the walls of Jerico and for not completely exterminating every Nephilim descendent of Canaan.

The Israelites now inhabited the Promised Land and they established tribal boundaries and divided the religious tasks among their tribal leaders – eventually leading to one single leader of their nation. First, was King David, followed by his son, King Solomon, who was the richest and the wisest man who ever lived. King Solomon generated 666 talents of gold per year through precious gifts from world leaders and through the excessive taxes he imposed upon his own people.

Prophesy describes how the bloodline of David, flowed through Solomon to Joseph, the earthly father of Jesus; and flowed also through Nathan (the other son of David) to Mary, the earthly mother of Jesus. Not only were the earthly parents of Jesus, both connected genetically to King David, but it was made known to Mary and Joseph that Jesus would inherit King David's Kingdom.

Without sexual relations -- with any man, Mary was visited by the angel Gabriel. Gabriel told Mary that she had been chosen by God to be the mother of the Messiah. He also told her that the Holy Spirit would come upon her and the "power of the Most High will over shadow you". Gabriel said the holy child to be born to Mary would be called the Son of God and Mary said, "I am the Lord's servant. May it be to me as you have said." In a dream, The Holy Spirit told Joseph, that "what is conceived in her is from the Holy Spirit" and that "she will give birth to a son, and you are to give him the name Jesus, because he will save his people from their sins."

Hence, God's perfect plan to send his son to earth had been accomplished and this 'Messiah' told everyone about his Father and about Heaven. Jesus always talked about love. Love your neighbor. Love your enemy. Love everyone as you love yourself and love your God. His message was clear and consistent; we all need to love and give of yourself to others that are in need. This was a radical message delivered to a hateful world – a world that did not like people who were different and a world that took whatever they desired for others, without their permission. It became obvious during His three years of ministry on this earth, that God wanted us to become more like Him.
